Dear Sir,

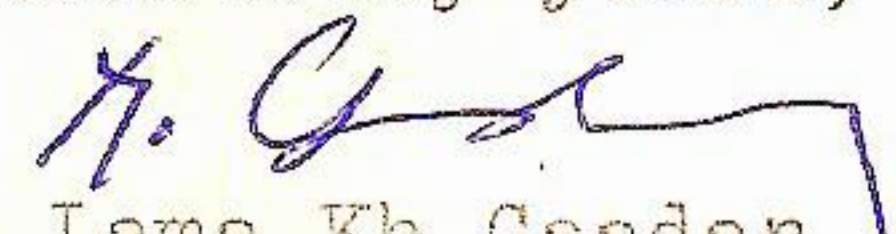

Please accept my sincere gratitude for your kind invitation to attend the International Press-Conference for Religious Peace.

On behalf of the Mongolian Buddhists and on my own behalf, I have the privilege and honour to extend warm and heartfelt greetings to the participants of the International Press-Conference and wish a success for this important event. I hope this timely undertaking, sponsored by You, will make a new contribution to the noble cause of creating better understanding between people of various religious faith.

Once again, I wish every success to the deliberations of the International Press-Conference.

May Your meritorious deeds be crowned with the Triratna.

Sincerely yours,

Khambo Lama Kh. Gaadan,
Head of the Mongolian
Buddhists

Dear Sir,

Please accept my New Year greetings and best wishes of happiness and peace. Thank you for your letter. It reached us, during my absence. In December, last year, I was away in Bodh Gaya, India. We attended there Kalachakra initiation and other religious ceremonies, where over 200,000 Buddhists converged in from various parts of the world.

was held

During the ceremony, a large meeting of monks and believers devoted to the inauguration of the International Year of Peace at which an Appeal on preserving of peace and security was adopted. I am confident that this year will be a new start of world peace and cooperation and as well as ties and contacts of religious communities of different faith be strengthened.

At your request, I am pleased to enclose hereby, a book on Buddhism in Mongolia.

Best wishes and further ties in the name of Peace.

Sincerely yours,

Khambo Lama Kh. Gaadan
